

Any apply to me & I am not engaged.
I am not sure after all, but that is the better of the two places.

You write that you are coming to see us; - hope you will come while I am here,

Yours &c

B. L. Moore,

P.S. Can you spare me a few more copies of the paper. The one I have is handled & read so much, that it will soon be used up. Mr Larkin thinks that it would be a good plan to send out here a hundred of the papers, & let them be circulated & read.
What was not taken would be returned. It strikes me more subscribers would be obtained in that way, you can direct as you ^{think best} ~~think best~~

So I shall leave that place. - If you want me to preach for you a Sabbath or two I suppose I can do it.

Bro Fishier writes that they have no one yet at Ashby, & would be glad to have me come back. I have written to him that I will take a second look at them, if
